

Membrane Color Options

Our PVC roofing membranes are available in a variety of color options designed to support both functional performance and aesthetic design goals. These color choices provide the freedom to create a visually unified design, satisfy code requirements, or reflect the building's established architectural identity.

Regardless of the selected color, each membrane is formulated for long-term weathering resistance, UV stability, and consistent performance over time. Engineered for endurance as well as appearance, colored membranes withstand the elements to deliver dependable protection.
